OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Salt Box Inventions.

There is a little 10-cent wooden salt box about six inches square, with a high back, in which a hole is pierced to hang it up by. With the front cut out and the lid taken off it makes a hanging bookshelf for about four small books. A row of them standing side by side, with lids or without, at the back of a little table transforms that table into a desk. One nailed firmly at each end of a board, boxes with backs toward each other, will make an excellent book holder to stand on a table. Nail up on the wall in a convenient place for incoming or outgoing mail. A small hole bored in the bottom of one will make a holder for a ball of string. With the lid removed it can receive a tumbler of cut flowers.

Period Furniture

SHERATON

The Sheraton Period style has come into marked favor in recent years. It was originated in the eighteenth century by Thomas Sheraton, an English designer, who produced a combination of lightness and grace in his cabinet work which makes this particular style unusually attractive for modern room settings. The straight tapering legs and the inlaid bands of satin wood are its chief characteristics.

WILLIAM AND MARY

This period of furniture originated with the accession of Mary and her Dutch husband, William of Orange, to the English throne. It was a combination of English and Dutch designs, the latter prevailing. The characteristic features of this period are the turned legs, curved underframing and arched tops of cabinets and frames. Dining room and library furniture of this style are especially popular and may be seen on our floors.

CHARLES II.—JACOBEAN FINISH

In this style the simple yet beautiful lines of the seventeenth century period are featured by twisted rope effects used in the supports and stretchers, as well as in the beautifully moulded and carved drawer fronts. The introduction of cane add a very artistic touch to the design. The cut shows this design.

ADAM

Robert and James Adam were famous English designers of furniture of the eighteenth century. Reproductions of their masterpieces for the royal family of London are very popular now. Classical mouldings, festoons of drapery, acanthus leaf, delicate fluting and the hand carved husk produced a very pleasing combination.

These popular styles of Period Furniture may be seen on our floors in both dining room and bedroom furniture.
